

Prof. Qijun Chen

Professor and Director

Shenyang Agricultural University, China

Qijun Chen is a Professor and Director of the Key Laboratory of Zoonosis, Shenyang Agricultural University, China. He also serves as a Laboratory Head of Parasitology at the Institute of Pathogen Biology, Chinese Academy of Medical Sciences. He is currently the chairman of the Chinese Association of Parasitology.

Professor Chen got his Ph.D in molecular parasitology in 1994. He conducted his postdoc training in Karolinska Institutet in Sweden from 1995 to 1999. He was employed as a senior research scientist at the Swedish Institute for Infectious Disease Control and Karolinska Institute after his postdoc study from 2000 to 2010. His main research interest is parasitic zoonosis with more than 90 publications in high profile journals including Nature, Cell, Science, JEM, Blood, Genome Biology, which represent his excellent contributions to the understanding of malaria pathogenesis and parasitic zoonosis such as schistosomiasis, toxoplasmosis, and trichinellosis.